This licence covers the use of music in bottle shops and liquor outlets including general retail businesses.

Why do I need a licence?

If you use copyright music in retail stores you need permission (a licence) from the authors of that music. By 'use' we mean anything from playing the radio, turning on a TV in the reception area, copying music from one device to another, streaming music through an iPad, piping music through your phone system, using a background music supplier, organising a concert and more. Securing an APRA AMCOS licence will meet your legal obligations under the Copyright Act.

Who is APRA AMCOS?

APRA AMCOS (which stands for the Australasian Performing Right Association and the Australasian Mechanical Copyright Owners Society) is a non-profit organisation which licenses rights in music on behalf of more than 90,000 members linked with 170 affiliated similar organisations worldwide. We pay your annual licence fees directly back to the songwriters, composers and publishers who own the music you're using. Legal alternatives to securing an APRA AMCOS licence are on page 3.

You can get independent information at www.copyright.org.au.

What music can I use if I have an APRA AMCOS licence?

We've done the hard work for you so our licence allows you to use virtually any commercially released music from anywhere around the world.

Example 1.

A liquor store is playing background music using an iPod. As the total retail area is 120m², a Background Music licence of $130.09 applies in addition to a $156.08 fee for copying up to 500 tracks onto the iPod.

The total annual licence fee is $286.17.

Example 2.

A bottle shop currently uses a radio for background music charged at $78.06 per year, and is now looking to replace the radio with a PC to which they have copied their music collection to. The business also now has spoken messaging over background music on the telephone on-hold system. Their new Background Music licence fee is $130.09 in addition to a $156.08 fee for copying up to 500 tracks onto their PC and $155.75 for up to 5 lines on their music on-hold system and $38.09 for the copying of music for that phone system.

The total annual licence fee is $480.06.

What does APRA AMCOS do with my fees?

We care about ensuring the licence fees you pay are distributed in the most economical and accurate way possible. We deduct our expenses from the revenue we receive and then distribute your fees to the songwriters, composers and music publishers whose works we have licensed to you.

This means for every dollar we collect, about 85 cents is returned to music creators. At around 15 per cent, our operational costs compare very favourably to organisations providing the same service overseas.

- Fees from background music, music on hold and copying go into royalty pools and are distributed according to data on music use from radio stations, ARIA (Australian Recording Industry Association) chart placings and music video channels.
- If you use music from certain background music suppliers, we distribute your licence fees according to the data reported to us by those suppliers.

How long does the licence last?

Licences are ongoing and renew each year. If you no longer need our licence (e.g. if you cease to use music), you can terminate with one month's notice to us.

When do I pay?

You pay when you first take out the licence, then just once a year. If your APRA AMCOS licence fee is more than $500, we will put you on quarterly payments (with no interest) or you can choose to pay once a year. Extended payment terms are available. To find our more contact our Customer Support Team on 1300 852 388.

Will the rates change?

Apart from yearly CPI reviews, APRA AMCOS will not increase or change licence fees without first consulting the industry.

Do I have to go through APRA AMCOS to play music in my business?

There are several ways to get permission to play music in your retail store.

APRA AMCOS Licence. Our licence is a one-stop shop for the world's repertoire of music and we believe it provides the easiest and most cost-effective way to access public performance rights to music.

Background Music Supplier. If you use an authorised background music supplier to provide the music at your premises, it may be that they can also provide you with all the necessary music licences you need. Feel free to contact us to see if you are already covered.

Direct Licensing. Our members may license their music directly to music users, including for live performances, and you are free to discuss this with them. You can find more details on our website under Dealing directly with copyright owners.

Royalty-Free Music. Some music suppliers offer recordings of music which they claim is outside our repertoire and so does not need our licence. If you wish to use a "Royalty-Free" music product, please contact us and we will check whether any extra licences are needed.

Disputes

If you do not agree with how we apply this licence to your business, with our fees, or with any of our services, you can use our convenient dispute resolution system. Email disputes@apra.com.au or call 02 9935 7900.
